主な研究と特徴

「Language and Technology」

Technology has the potential to aid second language learning and instruction. Recent advancements in Artificial Intelligence (AI) are promising and boost language learners' efforts towards communicative competence. However, research with colleagues has revealed barriers. Learners may lack computer experience to take advantage of technology available to them. AI has a variety of limitations in linguistics that could create difficulties in utilization for second language learning.

今後の展望

How learners and teachers can benefit from and utilize AI for second language learning. Also, how AI can be utilized for linguistics research.
